One hundred and twelve marshals and fifty deputy marshals were appointed under the new election law of Congress to run the Radical machine in Jersey City and Hoboken during the election yester-day. In addition to these there were a host of inspectors and a number of detectives, all of whom were employed, not to protect the purity of the elections, but to see that every Radical voted early and often, and to keep as many Democrats from voting as possible.

It is alieged that some of the bitter news-paper articles recently published criticising President Grant's action on the question of assessing clerks were written by Mr. Patent Commissioner Fisher. Madame Secretary ascessing clerks were written by Mr. Patent Commissioner Fisher. Madame Secretary Cox, after perusing one of these Fisher articles, cut it out and sent it to Mrs. Grant, anonymously. Unfortunately for Mrs. Cox, however, she accidentally pat the obnoxious article is an envelope bearing the family monogram of Cox, and of course Mrs. Grant immediately knew whence it came. Further, she recognised the callgraphy of Mrs. Cox, from whom she had received leiters; therefore, when Mrs. Grant iglanced over the article she naturally felt indignant, and put it into a Grant envelope, with the simple but cutting words: "Returned to Mrs. Cox, with the compliments of Mrs. Grant." Detecting Murder With a Microscope—The Case of a Murdered Michagan Banker.

The Field Vanderpool murder case in Michagan, now on its second trial, is one of the most remarkable cases in the criminal history of Lewiston, Me., and Field was reason of age at the time of bis death. He had led a roving life, baving been a salor and a United States marine, and having escaped two most perilous shipwrecks, one of which was of a Russian bark near Rigs. He then passed through a commercial college at Auburn, Me., and formed the equantance of Miss Hill, of Lewiston, who offered to educate him, and when his health began fo fail from the continement of stady, moved with him to-Manistee, Michigan, where they lived to getter as upplies and sunt, Mough lino, but formed with him a banking firm, investing about $7,000, which was furnished him by Miss Hill. Vanderpool originated in Central New York, bore a good character, and has a young wife. He put $2,500 into the firm, In September, 1809, Field wished to withdraw his funds and dissolve partnership, which was finally agreed to, in spite of Vanderpool's reluctance, On Sturday night they went into the bank togelber, and trevive days atter Field's body was found in factoring heat the body in the lake. Stains upon the floor of the bank and carpeting have been towed away by an under-current. The theory is that Vanderpool merdered him on Sanday forencom in the bank and afterwards deposited the body in the lake. Stains upon the floor of the bank and carpeting have been analyzed, and the microscope reveals, with startling certainty, the exact nature of the blood copyused the body to the lake as the relief of sevence of the trial, all ethors to be a sunday aftersoon, and it that is rettled Vanderpool could not have been the murderer. Thus the mass of evidence is entirely crucumstantial, and only the most careful efficing and balancing will instiff a verdiect of guilty or clear the pr

The members of the European family are in such constant communication with each other that every loss suffered by one of them is more or less felt by all the others. Germary has already, in one respect, lost more than France, for her army contained numbers or men trained to science, commerce and manufactures, who have died on the battle-field and whose loss it will take a generation to replace. Another, though a less important, consequence of the war is the incompleteness of the harvest operations, owing to field and waves.
